The Sudden Death Of Michael Jackson: The Medical Facts About The Cause Of Death Andrew Dolan
Michael Jackson died with six different drugs in his body, and several of the drugs he was using in a misguided attempt to treat his insomnia contributed directly to his cardiac arrest. However, the truth is that Michael Jackson did not have to die. He was completely unaware that a common nontoxic neurohormone could have treated the chronic insomnia that led to his drug abuse and ultimate death. Get the medical facts about how years of prescription drug abuse ended in the sudden death of Michael Jackson. Includes over a hundred medical journal references.
