The secret to longevity and a happy life lies in the ability to actually prevent illness and maintain a balanced bodily state, rather than wiping the slate clean any time you find yourself suffering from a problem that has gotten out of control. The body is a miracle worker in itself, and will do everything possible to maintain a healthy state of being. However, usually the problems will start if there is an imbalance somewhere along the way. That's when you start to feel sick and unwell, and end up turning to remedies, often times destructive man-made medicines, to help put you back on track.

Well, the fact of the matter is that nobody out there is well-equipped to come back from having every bit of bacteria wiped out of your body, and that can actually cause even worse issues to begin occurring. One example of further problems our bodies endure once the good and the bad bacteria has been wiped away is the growth of candida. When this happens, it is difficult to just balance our bodies in the natural sense, especially because we have just disposed of so much of our helpful internal army.
