Stones from the River Jordan Sara W. Berry

This study began when the author read Joshua 3 and 4 in her daily devotion. From what she knew of Joshua, he had not always been this great, fearless leader. In fact, as she continued to study Joshua, son of Nun, she saw that he was a former slave... Even less than ordinary beginnings, yet called by God. And then the Lord began to lead her to other important biblical characters, and there she saw a common thread... ordinary status. That is what they all had in common. And yet, God changed them and used them in extraordinary ways. He made the weak strong, the slave free, and the scared brave. And then it hit her: our ordinary ways, surrendered to His will, can produce extraordinary fruit. God loves to use the ordinary to produce the extraordinary. Because when extraordinary things happen in and through the ordinary, the glory goes to Him alone.
